
How to get off the investment manager merry-go-round.

Russell knows.

Today, too many institutional investors think that conducting a search for new fund managers every few years is a “normal” experience—an inevitable fact of life.

Russell puts you in control

But we're here to tell you about a better way to manage your retirement plan. One that lets you put this kind of wheel-spinning behind you. It's Russell's market-tested “manager of managers” approach. It puts you in control by providing:

- Access to many of the world's top investment firms.
- Sophisticated fund architecture designed to control risk.
- Stringent, ongoing oversight.
- Simplified administration.
- The potential to improve performance over time.

World-class pension expertise: built-in

Russell is Frank Russell Company, creator of the Russell 2000® Index.

Russell knowledge, based on two and a half decades' leadership in investment manager research, helps guide the investment of more than $700 billion for clients in 25 countries.

Our manager of managers process is different from an account with a typical manager, because it has Russell's expertise in both manager research and fund architecture built-in.

We select world-class managers in each asset class, building funds that are balanced by style and even sub-style. Then we monitor—and manage—both the fund structure and the advisors on an ongoing basis.

The result is a series of funds designed to produce a steady stream of benchmark-beating returns in a variety of market environments.

Proven managers in every class

Few organizations have the resources to maintain such a sophisticated risk control structure on their own. That's why the Russell process makes so much sense: It's convenient, accessible, and you only have to manage one relationship. Yet you still get full diversification, implemented by some of the top specialists in each area.

A fundamentally different experience

Put Russell's knowledge to work for you full time. Get off the manager search merry-go-round. And concentrate your expertise where it's needed most: running your business.

By the way, the Russell process is a powerful solution for individual investors as well.
